What to Do if ICE Seeks Access to Campus:

Know Your Rights: It is important to be aware of your rights in interactions with immigration officials:

- You do not have to open the door if an immigration agent is knocking. If they have a judicial warrant, they will not need your permission.
- You have the right to remain silent & not answer any questions from an immigration agent.
- Do not sign anything without first speaking to a lawyer.
- If you are outside your home, ask the agent if you are free to leave. If they say yes, leave calmly.

Resources Available:

- The California Attorney General's Office provides guidance and resources for various sectors, including higher education.
- The Immigrant Legal Resource Center offers free Red Cards with reminders for asserting your rights and protecting yourself in various situations. Red Cards are available in multiple languages and can be downloaded and printed.
- We have Red Cards available for students and their families, which can be obtained in any of our student services offices.
- The Dream Center assists undocumented/AB540 students & students from mixed-status families and will continue to provide services, resources, and support. HISPANIC/LATINEX ALUMNI SUCCESS STORIES

As part of our Alumni Spotlight series, the Mendocino College Hispanic-Serving Institution (HSI) staff would like to spotlight: Jose Gallegos Ruiz. As an immigrant, Jose's story showcases his commitment to serving his family and community.

Jose's Higher Education Journey:

As an immigrant who had recently arrived in the United States from Mexico, Jose found himself struggling to adjust to the US education system. Not only did Jose have to learn English as a freshman at Ukiah High School but he also had to adjust to life in the US without his friends and extended family. Additionally, moving to the states required Jose and his family to make many sacrifices just to survive. Early on, Jose found himself working in the fields alongside his parents and taking a job at a car wash to help provide for him and his family. Jose described his time working in the fields as one in which he experienced a lot of discrimination. All of these factors contributed to Jose wanting to return to Mexico where he had a home and where things were familiar to him.

Despite the challenges Jose and his family were facing, Jose decided to prove that he could succeed. After comparing class schedules with one of his friends, Jose noticed how he had been placed in general and remedial courses instead of being given the same opportunity to take higher level courses such as physics. Although the High School office staff were hesitant to enroll Jose in higher level courses, Jose was able to get himself transferred into several college prep courses after advocating for himself and getting his parent's signature stating they were okay with his schedule change. This decision to enroll in college prep courses made his acceptance into several universities possible. Not only that, but he was also granted more than $20,000 worth of scholarships for his academic excellence.

Ultimately Jose decided to enroll at Mendocino College as a way to save money and continue providing support to his family. But Jose had a plan. He would be in and out in 2 years. And he did exactly that.

Jose Gallegos Ruiz graduating from Sacramento State

During his time at Mendocino College, Jose had the opportunity to be part of the CAMP program. While in the program, Jose shared his vision with the CAMP counselor and CAMP manager. The support he received from Monica Flores, the CAMP manager at the time, as well as from Jackie Orozco, the HEP manager at Mendocino College, enabled him to gain additional experiences that launched him into the next chapter of his education. Through their efforts, they were able to send Jose to Washington DC as part of a summer internship working for the Department of Education. This exposure to the congressional committees and caucuses sparked a sense of duty and passion within Jose; Jose wanted to become better educated so that he too could help marginalized communities get the education they deserved. Jose took advantage of his internship and networked with others as a way to ask questions related to higher education opportunities including learning what a master's degree was, how to apply to a master's program, and other general information that first-generation college students like himself did not have access to.

After graduating from Mendocino College, Jose transferred to Sacramento State University where he was able to work within the Serna Center, the office that provides services to Chicanx/Latinx students. Fortunately for Jose, Sacramento State also had a CAMP program in which he continued...

...to be involved, providing mentoring support to the new students who were coming in. As his graduation date approached, Jose's manager encouraged him to apply for a full-time position. Jose's dedication to serving students led him to be hired as a Financial Aid counselor. It was during this same time that Jose started his master's program in Educational Leadership at Sacramento State.

Due to the rigor of the master's program, Jose began to feel some self-doubt, believing that he might not be ready for quantity and quality of work that was going to be expected of him, but Jose did not quit. After two long years, Jose graduated with his master's. When reflecting on his accomplishments, Jose said, "nunca pense que lo hubiera podido hacer" (never would I have thought that I could do it).

Jose's Inspiration and Advice to Current Mendocino College Students:

Jose's inspiration comes from both his parents and his community. Due to his experiences, Jose understands the sacrifices and work it takes to become successful. Jose also acknowledged the fact that he didn't get to where he was alone as there were several folks in his life that were willing to guide him along the way, answering questions, and sharing their insight on what to expect. And for the things he didn't know, Jose just went with it. As Jose said during the interview, "I just threw myself into the fire. I was a risk taker. I had the mentality that 'I would figure things out'". Just like Jose, sometimes we have to move forward with a positive mindset knowing that we will figure things out in the end. 🦋

RECLAIMED VISIONS: ART AND SUSTAINABILITY

February 13 - March 23, 2025

Free and open to the public!

The three artists featured in Mendocino College Gallery's latest exhibition create works that consider the implications of our human imprint on nature.

Art that creates a deeper awareness of the environmental impact of our actions and inspires a shift toward more sustainable living is Heather Law's passion.

Kala Stein works at the intersection of craft, design, and sustainability, exploring notions of beauty and loss in the natural world.

Evan Hobart describes his work as, "A platform to discuss the past, present, and future, utilizing the intersection of humanity and nature to comment on modern-day life." He continues, "My work examines today's world and elaborates on many of its facets such as global climate change, politics, war, religion, society, over-development, and possibly the eventual extinction. Unpleasant as it is to confront some of these issues, it is the work (obligation) of the artist and teacher, now and in the past, to do so - in a creative and thought-provoking way."

All three artists work primarily in the medium of ceramics.

Reception Thursday, February 13 at 4:30 pm

Light refreshments will be served.
